Dear Readers:

The Richmond Journal of Law and Technology is proud to present the fourth issue of the 2010–2011 academic year. In this issue, we explore privacy law in the context of online social networking, online advertising and tort reform. Additionally, this issue examines mandatory disclosure of trade secrets as a component of offshore oil drilling regulation and evaluates certain criticisms levied against the Anti-Counterfeiting Trade Agreement.

The success of the Journal depends on the efforts of our staff and editorial board. Without their hard work and dedication the Journal's achievements would not be possible. Also, I would like to recognize the efforts of our Administrative Board, whose leadership fostered the publication of four issues and a well-attended symposium.

On behalf of the entire 2010-2011 Journal staff, I extend our sincerest thanks for your continued readership. The Journal appreciates the continuing support from the University of Richmond School of Law community, most especially the guidance we receive from our faculty advisors, Professors Melanie Holloway, Chris Cotropia and Jim Gibson.

We are confident you will enjoy our fourth issue. As always, your comments and suggestions are welcome at jolt@richmond.edu.

Best regards,
